Upcoming Funding Opportunities

Available in the coming months on DOEE's website under "Grants and Other Funding":

Ditch the Disposables: Grants for Reusable Foodware

A new grant program to support transitions from disposable to reusable foodware will be available in Spring 2022. Food-serving entities in the District -- including restaurants, schools, nonprofits, houses of worship, and more -- can apply for funds to support house dishwashing capacity, implementing a reusable takeout container program, or related initiatives. To learn more, please visit <https://doee.dc.gov/disposables>, where further updates and application information will be posted.

Job Opportunities

DOEE is looking for an Environmental Protection Specialist to join the team that implements and enforces the Bag Law, Foam Ban, Plastic Straw Ban, and other regulations that reduce pollution in the District. The person will also support coordination of DOEE's efforts under the Chesapeake Bay Program and manage DOEE grants.

For more detailed information regarding this opportunity, please head to careers.dc.gov and enter 16041 in the search area. Environmental Protection Specialist CS-0028-11 Job ID 16041 (1 position). This position is located in the Watershed Protection Division, Natural Resources Administration. The announcement is listed as "Open to the Public" and has a closing date of March 10, 2022.

Fun Fact

To verify compliance with the District's 5-cent bag fee, DOEE typically inspects more than 550 businesses per year. Businesses receive a warning letter and compliance assistance upon their first observed violation. For subsequent violations, businesses are fined between $100 and $800, depending on the number of previous violations. Know a business that is not charging the 5-cent bag fee?
